Eric Jensen: Teaching with Poverty in Mind

Wednesday, Oct. 28, 2015 - Friday, Dec. 18, 2015
Online Graduate Course via Moodle 24/7

CESA 6 course instructors:

Jackie Schoening, MSSW, CISW, SSW Safe and Healthy Schools Program Coordinator
Tere Masiarchin, CESA 6 Coordinator, Language and Culture Center
Jenny Larson, CESA 6 Regional Service Network Director and RITE Program Instructor
Holly Rabe, CESA 6 School Psychologist Coordinator

Description

Through this online book study of Eric Jensen's "Teaching with Poverty in Mind, What Being Poor Does to Kids' Brains and What Schools Can Do About It," participants will improve and expand their understanding of youth in poverty. This course will provide a practical learning experience to assist teachers in meeting the PI-34 requirements for licensing recertification.

Course participants will learn to evaluate, improve, enhance, and develop curriculum and school-based learning activities to support youth living in poverty. Networking and activities will provide opportunities for educators and school staff to set local and regional goals; share best practices and disseminate information from national, state, and local resources on academic standards, poverty, and effective teaching and learning strategies.

Workshop objectives

- Promoting use of best practices in brain research, poverty and the effects on developing brains.
- Utilizing science-based practices in the classroom around brain research and poverty.
- Infusing brain research into core curriculum.
- Evaluating current curriculum and activities to improve learning opportunities for youth in poverty.

Who should attend?

- K-12 elementary and secondary education teachers, ELL teachers, pupil services staff, building principals, directors of curriculum and district administrators/superintendents
