

A Mindset for Learning

March 23, 2017 – 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Presenter: Lori Rugotska, Ed.D., Dynamic Learning Collaborative Coordinator

Description

Drawing on the book of the same name, this workshop will explore ways teachers and schools can teach the habits of mind needed for academic success. We will explore five different attitudes, or stances -

- Optimism
- Persistence
- Flexibility
- Resilience
- Empathy

Using research by people like Carol Dweck and Daniel Pink, we will explore the stances and their connections to the growth mindset, including teaching productive self-talk, goal setting and reflection.

While many of the examples will be focused on elementary, the practices can be used at any level.

Workshop Objectives

Explore answers to the following questions:

- What are the five stances and what do they look like in a classroom?
- How can we teach the stances?
- How do we deepen (or start!) our growth mindset practices?
- How can we involve families?

Who Should Attend?

Administrators, teacher leaders, classroom teachers, and school-based teams.
