Implementing a Culturally Responsive Multilevel System of Support: Reviewing K-12 Universal Mathematics

This workshop guides teams through understanding and analyzing system-wide instructional, assessment, collaborative and culturally responsive practices that support student success with the Common Core Standards for Mathematics, particularly the Standards for Mathematical Practice. Teams will leave with a prioritized set of actions and professional learning resources to implement at their district.

Audience

- District teams of three or more, including K–12 grade-level teachers, mathematics instructors/ specialists, mathematics coaches, special educators, instructional leaders, building administrators, district curriculum administrators. (We recommend a team of six, with representation from elementary, middle, and high school levels.)
- District teams must include a district and/or school-level administrator.
- All district team members are required to attend all three days of the training.

Outcomes

- Understand what is required of the Common Core State Standards for Mathematics with a focus on the Standards for Mathematical Practice.
- Recognize the importance of systemic practices in instruction, collaboration and assessment at the universal level.
- Learn about Wisconsin's Guiding Principles for Teaching and Learning in the Mathematics Classroom and examine the district's status for each.
- Analyze, prioritize and plan around actions that will have a positive impact on student learning.

Preparation

Participants should bring a completed student data profile (template provided upon registration). Laptop or tablet is strongly recommended for each participant.

Cost

$195 per person. Includes registration breakfast, networking lunch, text book and materials for all three days.

Presenters

Heidi Erstad and Sara Summ, Wisconsin Rtl Center Regional Technical Assistance Coordinators
