Presenter: Nic Dibble is the State Consultant for School Social Work for the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction. His areas of responsibility include school mental health and trauma-sensitive schools, confidentiality and student records, child welfare and maltreatment, school discipline, attendance and truancy, and teen parents. His work involves technical assistance, resource and professional development, and interagency collaboration.

Nic worked 12 years as a school social worker before joining the Department of Public Instruction and also served as the Program Manager for the Families and Schools Together (FAST) Program. Other experiences include serving as President of his local school board and Chair of the Wisconsin Children's Trust Fund Board.
