How to Be an Effective and Successful Teacher

August 8, 2016 – 8:30 a.m. to Noon

Drs. Harry and Rosemary Wong are authors of the bestselling book in education worldwide, The First Days of School, with more than 3.9 million copies sold. Harry is the recipient of the Horace Mann Outstanding Educator Award and the only recipient of the Lifetime Achievement Recognition from the National Teachers Hall of Fame. Instructor Magazine named him one of the 20 most admired people in education.

Rosemary received the Distinguished Alumnus Award from the School of Education at Southeastern Louisiana University and Louisiana State University. They were nominated for the Brock International Prize in Education, have received the Upton Sinclair Award, and are the recognized leaders in the development of effective teachers. They have influenced the lives of hundreds of thousands of teachers, have helped transform thousands of schools into effective schools, and have built and sustain a school in the jungles of Cambodia.

Description

Effective means producing the expected and intended results, which for teachers would be student learning. Harry and Rosemary Wong will explain that the single greatest effect on student achievement is the effectiveness of the teacher. Effective teachers have a classroom that is structured and organized and CONSISTENT in how the classroom is run. They will show how effective teachers manage their classrooms for high-level student success, teach for lesson mastery so the students will learn and achieve, and have positive expectation for student success.

They will show many practical examples of:

- How to manage a classroom so that students do what they are supposed to do (thus, eliminating most behavior problems);
- How to teach for lesson mastery so the students will learn and achieve; and,
- How to produce students who will come to school each day with high expectations to succeed.

Workshop Objectives

- Use a first day of school plan to start your career successfully.
- Get your students to do what you want them to do.
- Get your students to learn what you want them to learn.
- Start class with no wasted time.
- Eliminate discipline problems.
- Teach procedures so every student knows what to do, how to do it, and when to do it.
- Establish consistency so the class responsibly runs itself.
- Write meaningful assignments that result in student learning.
- Assess for student learning to help students make progress.
