Everyone Engaged in Educational Excellence

What's in It for You?

- Connecting to your regional colleagues
- Building on your current curriculum, approach, and knowledge
- Sharing your expertise regionally
- Staying current on state and national science policy
- Learning how your classes connect to your students' future careers

At Each Meeting:

- Hands-on activity focusing on explicitly teaching/scaffolding Science and Engineering Practices (SEPs)
- Connecting life science, physical science, and Earth and space science through the Crosscutting Concepts (CCC)
- Breakout sessions for life science, physical science, Earth and space science collaboration
 - Sharing best practice
 - Sharing materials
 - Extending content learning
- A short update from the state science leader on current state policy and national trends

Planned Events and Resources:

- Local business leaders who hire science majors to talk about the type of work/careers available at different degree levels
- Content learning with invited experts in life science, physical science, and Earth and space science
- NGSS-aligned materials forum
- Evaluating NGSS-aligned materials/units/lessons
