

Quality Instructional Materials

Unlocking Teacher Creativity and Increasing Equity

November 9, 2018

High-quality instructional materials save time. Combined with ongoing, meaningful professional learning, instructional materials can provide the support that teachers deserve to help improve student outcomes. They let teachers focus their creativity and skill on connecting with students to meet their needs and propel learning forward.

REGISTER NOW to attend this FREE, full-day, professional learning event.

- Learn how high-quality instructional materials can increase equity
- Determine how to vet instructional materials for quality
- Explore options related to materials selection and professional learning
- Examine research that supports connections between standards-aligned instructional materials, professional learning, and student achievement

Eric Hirsch
Executive Director,
Ed Reports

Kate Gerson
Chief Executive Officer,
UnboundEd

COME AS A TEAM. This professional learning opportunity is designed for school-based teams comprised of 4-12 educators: teachers, principals, directors of curriculum & instruction, educators from teacher prep programs, and designers of educator professional learning. The primary focus of this event is English Language Arts and Mathematics.

Nov 9, 2018 • 8:00 AM - 3:30 PM

Location:

Click Here to Register

For additional information please contact your local CESA.

WISCONSIN DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION
Tony Evers, PhD, State Superintendent