

Equity by Design: Creating Classrooms Where Students Thrive

with Jessie Cordova

December 14 & 15, 2020

8:30 AM — 3:30 PM

Registration 8:00 AM Continental Breakfast (8:00 AM) and Lunch Included

Waterfront Hotel & Convention Center—Oshkosh, Wisconsin

About This Program:

Together, teacher leaders and administrators explore how current systems of oppression affect our students and how to strategically, and compassionately, interrupt those through relationship-building, policy-making, and intentional practice. This very practical workshop allows participants to engage in interactive experiences to build knowledge and skill around key ways of being, beliefs, and behaviors to develop an inclusive and thriving school.

Workshop Outcomes:

- Ground in the identities and beliefs informing your work
- Understand how your leadership is conducive to creating equitable spaces
- Examine how the systems, structures, and policies in your local context may hinder equity efforts
- Learn new strategies and approaches to compassionately interrupt and stop inequitable practices
- Refine the leadership required of you to create and maintain equitable learning spaces

Activities Include:

- Exploration of identities and origins of beliefs
- Interrogation of existing policies and systems
- Growing strategies for building relationships with students
- Refining approaches to classroom visits and hiring practices
- Deepening understanding of leadership
- Observing a transformational, equity-centered coaching conversation

About our presenter:

Jessie has worked in education for about 15 years as a bilingual and ESL teacher, team leader, and instructional and leadership coach to both teachers and their coaches. She earned a BA in History from Syracuse University and an MA in Education from the University of St. Thomas in Houston, TX. Jessie is also a Certified Professional Coach through Leadership That Works and she believes that coaching is a healing practice. She is passionate about designing and facilitating learning experiences that help people rediscover who they are and want to become. Jessie lives in Brooklyn, New York. You will often find her reading, traveling, doing Zumba and eating delicious Keto-friendly food.
