Workshop Description:

This full-day session is designed for teachers and administrators to provide an introduction to personalized learning/learner-centered practices. This in-depth look will focus on elements of learning and teaching that promote student agency and equity. Participants will be invited to think about where leverage points may exist in their own systems to create a learner-centric environment and create a plan of action to get started. We will use the Institute for Personalized Learning's Honeycomb model. Join us as take a journey into a new way of learning!

NOTE: This is the registration for just Day 1 of the Implementing Learner-Centered Practices series. To register for the entire series, click here.

Presenter:
