Identification of and Instructional Practices for Students with Cognitive Disabilities

Wednesday, October 26, 2011

Are you confused as to which standards to use?

How do you make decisions about which accommodations for instruction and assessment you are using?

Want to learn more Come join Sandy Berndt, an Independent Education Consultant to discuss Instruction for students with Cognitive Disabilities. Sandy has experience teaching students with cognitive disabilities, providing support to other teachers, administering programs and 20 years at DPI.

Sandy will be sharing the changes of working with students with a cognitive disability to an academic focus and what that looks like in an inclusive setting. She will also focus on programming for students 18 to 21 years of age, and how that can be implemented.

Sandy wants to focus the day on what teachers are needing in their classrooms. Please email Jessica questions that you would like Sandy to address during the workshop.
