

Reflections on Clinical Practice: Embracing Diversity in Speech-Language Pathology

Theresa Young, Speech-Language Pathologist

**International Educator's first visit to Wisconsin****

Theresa Young began her career on the Pacific island of Saipan where she worked with multilingual students and families. Returning to Canada, Theresa practiced in schools in the highly diverse Toronto area, along with providing professional development and co-authoring articles and chapters on multicultural, multilingual topics in education. She has also taught English as a Second Language to both children and adults in Saipan, Israel and Canada. Theresa collaborates with First Nations educators to design and implement early language programming and school age intervention for children and families in their home communities.

Workshop Description:

This full day workshop is designed to provide a review of current practices and research relevant to speech and language pathologists who serve school age children with culturally and or linguistically diverse backgrounds who are suspected of having communication disorders. Topics of assessment, intervention, collaborating with educators, working with interpretative personnel will be addressed.
