

Cultural Self-Awareness

MARCH 2, 2022

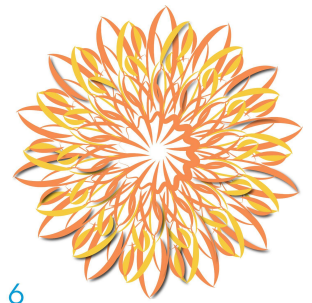

8:30 AM - 12:00 PM

Facilitators: Kim Walters | Director
Demetri Beekman | Consultant

All experts agree that the first step in becoming more equitable and inclusive is to have a solid understanding of your own culture. Why is it important to learn about your own culture? Because in order to understand cultures that are different from your own, you must be able to identify the elements of your own culture that appear unique to another person's perspective. This interactive workshop will guide participants to reflect, explore, and develop their understanding of their own cultural self-awareness. Participants will gain an understanding of how they are "showing up" in the classroom and how that plays a role in student achievement.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

- People who are in the beginning stages of their equity journey will benefit from this interactive workshop. Becoming more culturally self-aware is the first step on the journey of cultural competence. If you struggle to answer the question, "Tell me about your culture," then this workshop is for you.
