Date: Monday, December 5, 2022
and Monday, February 6, 2023

Time: 9:00 am to 4:00 pm

Location: CESA 9

Topics Include:

- How to set high expectations while being supportive
- How to provide direct feedback and ask questions that foster accountability
- Most effective methods to resolve common conflicts
- Restorative practices and using circles effectively

During this 2-day introductory restorative practices experience, you will learn fundamental theories and practices for engaging with students, staff, and parents in your school setting.

You will also learn to facilitate circles, an essential process for creating a positive learning environment and school culture. Circles may be used to build social capital, resolve social problems, and respond when harm occurs.

Additionally, the instructor will address many issues related to building relationships and community while teaching in person or virtually. Concepts include how and when to have one-on-one conversations; the effective use of informal time as students gather; and setting norms for running circles.
