

CUT TO THE CORE:

Using Active Literacy Strategies to Weave the Core Content Standards Into Your Instruction

Presenter: Mary Lou Harris

CESA #4, Thursday, March 8, 2012

8:30a.m. to 3:00p.m.

Target Audience: Gr. 4 - 9 ELA and Content Area Teachers—also Appropriate for Special Ed Teachers

Do your student's "read it" but don't "get it"? Are you looking for ways to actively engage your students in reading, writing, thinking and purposeful talk? This workshop shares strategies that correlate with the core curriculum standards and engage students in learning concepts across content areas. A framework for learning, as well as a variety of strategies will be demonstrated so participants are easily able to implement them into their classroom. These instructional practices include differentiated responses to meet the needs of all students. When students are actively involved a joyful learning environment is created.

BIO: Mary Lou Harris-Manske is an educator with nearly 40 years of experience. She is retired as the District Reading Coordinator for the Stevens Point School District. Often referred to as the "Book Lady", she has given scores of book talks around the state. She and her husband, Ken, are owners of The Book Look, a children's book store. Mary Lou is currently a literacy consultant working with many schools across the state, as well as schools in Minnesota and Texas.
