October 10 & December 11, 2012 and February 12 & April 17, 2013

Presenter: Mary Ann Hudziak
CESA 6 Coordinator of Math & Science

Description

A great diversity exists among learners. The educational community has a responsibility to identify and develop the talents of children who are gifted and talented in the areas of general intellectual ability, specific academic ability, creativity, artistic ability and leadership. Many schools are struggling to meet these needs. This network offers support for those providing direction for the education of gifted and talented students.

Network Objectives

- What process does your district/school use to identify gifted/talented students?
- How can we learn from each other to provide rich opportunities for our gifted and talented learners?
- What types of programs or opportunities does your district/school offer for gifted students that are systematic and continuous? How do they connect to core curriculum?
- What help do you need or can you offer to improve opportunities for gifted students?
- What resources are available?

Who should attend?

- Gifted and Talented Teachers/Coordinators
