Description

CESA 6 in partnership with the International Center for Leadership in Education, will provide a comprehensive 5-day train-the-trainer program for master teachers in the component districts of CESA 6. The program will be designed to build the capacity necessary to allow the component districts and schools of CESA 6 to improve curriculum, instruction and assessment through a complete application of the concepts and philosophy of rigor, relevance, and relationships. The program will provide the tools, resources, training, and support that will enable the schools to create a culture of rigor, relevance, and relationships and sustain a climate of continuous instructional improvement. It is anticipated that 20 schools will participate in the 5-day program.

It is recommended that master teachers representing all disciplines be identified to participate in the activity-based program. The program will be sequenced so that each day builds on the one previous. The goal is to provide every master teacher with the skills and knowledge necessary to make rigor, relevance, and relationships a reality in their own classrooms and to provide appropriate resources and activities that will allow the master teachers to conduct professional development for their peers.

As a result of the training and networking opportunities created by this program, a database of Gold Seal Lessons will be created and made available to all schools participating in the program.
