

What's the Law Got to Do With It?

Legal and Ethical Issues
for Pupil Service Professionals
October 2, 2012—CESA 4, West Salem
9:00a.m. to 2:00p.m.

What's the Law Got to Do with It? Legal and Ethical Issues for Pupil Services Professionals

Because codes, laws, policies and procedures are not always precise and ethical codes tend to reflect what most professionals can agree on rather than ideal pupil services practices, professionals need to learn to engage in ethical decision-making and become knowledgeable of relevant laws and statutes. The intent of this training is to help pupil service professionals gain important content knowledge and demonstrate performance in the area of legal and ethical issues. An ethical decision-making model is shared. Time is provided for small group work discussing challenging ethical dilemmas encountered by Wisconsin pupil services professionals.

Nic Dibble is the Consultant for School Social Work Services at the Department of Public Instruction. His responsibilities at DPI include student records and confidentiality, mental health and suicide prevention, child welfare and maltreatment, school age parents, and cross-system collaboration. Nic co-authored the book Ethical Decision Making in School Mental Health published by Oxford University Press in 2010. He has provided training in Wisconsin and nationally in ethics and boundaries for close to a decade.

Registration Information:

Target Audience: School counselors, nurses, psychologists, and social workers
Light morning refreshments and lunch included.

To register go to MyQuickReg at: <http://login.myquickreg.com/agency/event/event.cfm?eventid=4338>

Cost: $25.00 per person - All Districts/Agencies

Contact: Lacie Ketelhut, CESA #4, email: lketelhut@cesa4.k12.wi.us or ph: 608-786-4540

