Grading and Reporting Student Learning

Effective Policies and Practices

Presented by

Tom Guskey

This presentation describes the good, the bad, and the ugly of grading and reporting policies and practices. Stressing the importance of fairness and honesty in grading, a variety of ways to report student learning progress to parents and the community are discussed, including report cards, alternative formats for parent conferences, newsletters, phone calls, and other reporting tools. Designing new reporting structures that better communicate and involve parents in students' learning will be highlighted, along with policies and practices that should be avoided due to their negative consequences for students, teachers, and schools.

Dr. Tom Guskey is Professor of Educational Psychology in the College of Education at the University of Kentucky. A graduate of the University of Chicago, he has taught at all levels, served as an administrator in Chicago Public Schools, and was the first Director of the Center for the Improvement of Teaching and Learning, a national educational research center. He is the author of numerous award-winning books and over 100 articles published in prominent research journals as well as Educational Leadership, Kappan, and School Administrator. Dr. Guskey served on the Policy Research Team of the National Commission on Teaching & America's Future, on the Task Force to develop the National Standards for Staff Development, and recently was named a Fellow in the American Educational Research Association, one of the Association's highest honors. As a consultant to schools throughout the world, he helps bring insight to some of education's most complex problems.
