

CESA #4 presents ...

Brain Compatible Differentiation for Tier I Classroom Instruction, with Dr. Robin Fogarty!!! Wednesday, October 10, 2012

8:00a.m.—2:30p.m. Morning refreshments & registration beginning at 7:30

Target audience: ALL EDUCATORS

Using twelve principles of the brain and learning (Caine and Caine) and nine best practices in teaching, to create a palette of brain-friendly strategies (Pete and Fogarty), participants learn how to differentiate the teaching/learning process into rich, rigorous and relevant learning for increased student achievement and enhanced self-esteem.

Then, targeting key concepts of differentiation (Tomlinson), teachers skillfully make subtle and substantive changes to standards-based content, to teaching/learning processes and to the student product options, as they apply the theory of differentiation to their instructional practices. It is a day laced with engaging classroom strategies as participants are immersed in the model of a multimodal classroom.

Participants will try, test, and transfer to their classroom situations:

- 12 Principles of the Brain and Learning
- 9 Families of Best Practices
- 3 Elements of Differentiated Instruction
- 10 Fail-proof Strategies to Engage Students

Cost: $150 per person (all districts)
