

Using iPads to Support & Teach Students with Special Needs

April 10, 2013
CESA #12 Conference Center
Registration 8:30
Workshop: 9:00 AM – 3:30 PM

Overview:

iPads have burst into educational practice with promise and challenge. They offer a wide range of apps that can meet student learning needs, push the envelope on e-text and online curricula, provide a powerful venue for collaboration and communication AND offer multimedia components that can be used to construct the projects of today and tomorrow. Let's explore this new tool and how it can integrate into the classroom, even supporting behavior and sensory processing, to help support the learning efforts of special education and struggling students.

Participants need to bring iPads. A list of recommended apps will be provided prior to the presentation.

Presenters:

Mary Maderich, CESA #12 Technology Integration Specialist & Apple Certified Trainer
Laura Comer, CESA #12 Assistive Technology Coordinator
