

Universal Design for Learning

An Overview of the UDL Framework and Components

Universal Design for Learning (UDL) provides educators with a structure to develop their instruction to meet the wide range of diversity among all learners. UDL is a research-based framework that suggests that a one-size-fits-all approach to curricula is not effective. Participants will learn about many aspects of UDL, including the principles, components, and how it works with initiatives and structures already existing in schools (e.g., common core state standards, educator effectiveness, RtI, and PBIS).

Audience

- This training is for individuals from any school level
- Principal or building leader, general education and special education teachers, curriculum directors/coordinators, director of pupil services

Outcomes

- A clear understanding of the history, purpose, and research behind UDL
- Review and outline the UDL components including the principles, guidelines, and checkpoints
- Discover and explore a variety of UDL resources to use and share with others
- Outline next steps regarding UDL implementation

Preparation

Participants should bring a laptop or other wi-fi enabled device.

Cost

$50 per person. Fee covers registration, materials, and a networking lunch.

Presenters

- Jolene Troia, education consultant, Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction
- Dana McConnell, coordinator of instructional supports for students with disabilities, Wisconsin RtI Center

Regional Dates & Locations

All trainings will be held 9:00 a.m.– 2:30 p.m. Onsite sign-in begins at 8:30 a.m.

Register online at www.wisconsinrticenter.org/event/all.html or through MyQuickReg.com to register for the session of your choice

October 25	Liberty Hall Banquet and Conference Center, Kimberly
November 21	Heartwood Retreat, Trego
November 22	Avalon Hotel and Conference Center, Chippewa Falls
December 12	Country Springs, Waukesha
December 13	Kalahari, Wisconsin Dells

For more information about the content of the training or for help registering, email Kate Higley at higleyk@wisconsinrticenter.org or call (715) 720-2137