Lisa Arneson will join us for the afternoon explaining the SLO process and facilitate work groups as you combine your efforts in developing your own SLOs.

Info from Lisa

“School Counselors are considered Educational Specialists in most cases, not teachers. Depending on the model a district uses, a counselor may/may not have to write SLO's for an evaluation system.

The CESA 6 model has a framework in place to evaluate school counselors; the DPI does not. In recent conversations with DPI staff, it is unclear whether or not they are going to require specialists to be evaluated in the same way as teachers. About half of our districts are using the CESA 6 model; the other half the DPI model.

Bottom line, SLO's for counselors will look different than those for teachers; they will have a PROGRAM focus rather than student learning.”
