

Is Special Ed Ready for Common Core?

As the 2014-15 school year rapidly approaches, there are many expectations that our Special Education teachers need to meet. Together at CESA, we are preparing a series of trainings for this group to help prepare special education teachers for implementation of the Common Core. During this academic year, educators will learn about the Common Core and new summative assessment expectations. They will also learn how to follow a universal district curriculum and develop assessments that support it. When special education and regular education teachers focus on the same curriculum that supports the Common Core, we begin working towards an increase in student achievement and a decrease in the achievement gap!

SCHEDULE

(detailed agendas will be sent just prior)

December 17, 2013

"Common Core and the Smarter Balanced Assessment"

Spend the morning learning about the common core state standards, how they impact students, the new state test in the afternoon and how to prepare students for it. .

February 3, 2014

"Essential Elements and Dynamic Learning Maps"

Spend the morning learning about the common core essential elements, how they impact students, the new state test in the afternoon and how to prepare students for it. .

March 20, 2014

"Using a Universal Curriculum"

How to bridge the curriculum expectations of special education and regular education to create a universal curriculum for the district.

March 21, 2014

"Developing Standard Based Assessments"

Creating assessments that will reach the same standards of the state test and meet the needs of students.

September 24, 2014

"Writing IEP's to support the Common Core"

Learn how to support grade level expectations of the common core for students through their IEP.

October 28, 2014

"Teaching with Webb's Matrix"

Student expectation will now require a different level of understanding from students. Learn what this different level is and how to support special education students to reach it.

Please join us for a series of day long trainings that will help educators prepare for common core implementation. *The cost is $150 per session per participant. Lunch will be served.

Register early and save!! Register on www.myquickreg.com

Goal: Help special education teachers understand the common core to support student achievement.

- objective 1: Understanding the common core
- objective 2: Learning to use a universal curriculum
- objective 3: Develop assessments and instruction strategies that support the common core

CESA #12 Conference Center

Registration: 8:30 a.m.

Workshops: 9:00 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.

Amanda J Popovich
amandap@cesa12.org
 715.682.2363 Ext. 104

Jerianne Kvapil Rosin
jerianne@cesa12.org
 715.682.2363 Ext. 113

Jen Ledin
jenniferl@cesa12.org
 715.682.2363 Ext. 149

"Assessment with Steven Ventura"

Join us for a free 1 hour webinar to learn more about developing high quality assessments that support a universal curriculum in your district.

Thursday, December 19, 2013
register on myquickreg.com