

IEPs to Promote Partnerships

The IEP Process as a Conversation

Please join us in a workshop about the soft skills of IEP meetings-how to promote good relationships between parents and schools through the IEP process.

We will highlight some critical components that can be addressed to effectively welcome parents into the conversation, ensure their understanding, and encourage good will.

WHY? We know from 40 years of research that schools with effective family engagement have students with higher grades, better attendance, higher graduation rates, and greater enrollment in postsecondary education. We think that the IEP process can support family engagement and minimize miscommunication between families and schools.

WHO? Parents of students with Special Educational needs, District Parent or Family Engagement Liaisons, Special Education teachers, Special Education Directors, Principals
